FIGHTING IN ARGONNE.

German War Office Reports
French Repulsed With Heavy Losses.

LONDON, April 22.—Hill No. 60, dominating an area southeast of Ypres, continues to be the storm centre of the western front, with the British clinging tenaciously to the ground taken by assault last Saturday.

Counter attack after counter attack has been so far successfully repulsed, but the British hold is still disputed by the Germans and the end of the lively and costly fighting is not yet in sight.

The British losses thus far have not been announced, but they are estimated at well over 2,000. The Germans are believed to have lost more than 4,000 men.

The Germans are pushing new troops to the front in an effort to drive back the British troops. According to the statement made to Parliament yesterday by Lloyd George, the British army in France and Belgium now numbers 750,000 men. As the British admit losses of 139,000, Great Britain has sent all told 889,000 men to fight with the allies.

It is said the German plans include not only an attempt to retake the ground lost to the British south of Ypres itself, but a strong movement against Ypres at the Yser positions held by the Belgian divisions.

The unexpected reverse, which cost the Germans heavily at Zillebeke, came just as they were ready for an offensive before the allies began their great forward movement. Since Monday there have been general transfers of troops holding the line from Dixmude to Menin, and fresh troops from Germany are now occupying the greater part of the position facing the British. Austrian troops also have arrived in Flanders, it is said, but it is not known what disposition is made of them.

The railways from Germany into Belgium are crowded with troop trains. Young, vigorous and finely equipped Germans and Austrians are literally being poured toward the western front. All ordinary passenger traffic has been stopped.

Germans Report Mining Operations and Repulse of French.

BERLIN, via London, April 22 (Associated Press).—German Army Headquarters to-day gave out the following report:

"In the western arena, south of La Bassée, Canal and to the northwest of Arras, we undertook several successful mining operations. "In the Argonne and in the region between the Meuse and the Moselle yesterday saw fierce artillery engagements. After a surprise artillery attack a French force last night advanced in the western part of the wood of Le Pretre, but they were repulsed with heavy losses.

"On the northern border of Hartman-Willerkopf we destroyed a point of support of the enemy, and in the evening we drove back a French attack."

THREE GIRLS HURT

ENDS NIGHT WHIRLYoung Doherty's Car Rams a
Brewery Truck in Fifth

HIS MACHINE A WRECK.

Young Women Whirled Away
in Taxi Before Police Arrive.

After a breakfast of scrambled eggs, Irish bacon and other provender nourishing to one who has been out all night, Lionel H. Doherty, twenty-four years old, of No. 790 Riverside Drive, climbed into his big yellow touring car and grasped the steering wheel. This was in front of Jack's Restaurant in Sixth Avenue at 6 o'clock this morning.

Into the car with Mr. Doherty piled his friends Frederick Stott and Ewan MacLachlan, in business at No. 25 Broad Street, and three beautiful and lavishly attired young women. They also had breakfasted and had been out all night, riding around.

Young Mr. Doherty guided his car east through Forty-fourth Street to Fifth Avenue and turned north. The avenue was apparently deserted and Mr. Doherty concluded that he would show his friends a little speed. This thought obsessed him to such an extent that he did not see a brewery truck loaded high with barrels of beer intrude into the avenue at Forty-fifth Street.

Mr. Doherty's car struck the brewery truck; indeed, he could hardly have missed it, it being one of the largest trucks in captivity. Although Mr. Doherty's car was extremely formidable it was no match for the truck in a collision and was completely wrecked.

Mr. Doherty, Mr. Stott, Mr. MacLachlan and one of the young women escaped serious injury. The other two women were painfully hurt. One of them was rendered unconscious.

Mr. MacLachlan proved himself a quick thinker and a man of action. Aided by Mr. Stott he carried the young women in the nearest store and summoned a taxi. He bundled the three into the vehicle and they rode away just as Patrolman Schmitt appeared on the scene.

Patrolman Schmitt concluded that young Mr. Doherty was in no shape to guide himself, to say nothing about guiding an automobile, and placed him under arrest. Mr. Doherty promptly sent for his father, John Lionel Wyndham Doherty, an importer of stout. The elder Doherty furnished a bond of $1,000 when his son was held in that amount for Special Sessions by Magistrate Murphy in Yorkville Police Court.

Young Mr. Doherty denied that he was drunk. He said all he had had in Jack's was a few cocktails and two or three beers. His father said he had given Lionel the car in the belief that Lionel was a sober, careful driver.

The three young men succeeded in concealing the identity of their women companions.

Awning Rod Injures Miss Cowan. Miss Sadie Cowan, of No. 167 Madison Avenue, a writer of books and plays, was coming down Fifth Avenue to-day, and when passing the Elizabeth tea-room, at No. 292 Fifth Avenue, the iron rod of an awning struck her on the head. Miss Cowan fell to the sidewalk, but did not hurt herself. People ran out of the tea house and carried her inside. Later she went home in a taxi.

Mrs. Brulattour Seeks to Compel Him to Take Policies for Her and Children.

Millionaire Film Importer Admits in Court He Intends to Wed Another Woman.

Mrs. Isabelle Brulattour, known in society as one of its handsomest matrons, appeared in Justice Delehanty's part of the Supreme Court to-day in a novel proceeding to compel her husband, Jules Brulattour, millionaire film importer, to take out $65,000 worth of life insurance. She wants it so she and her three children may have something to look forward to later on. The couple have been separated for several years. Brulattour has been dividing his time between New York and Paris. He has luxurious establishments at No. 499 Riverside Drive and at No. 34 Boulevard de Boulogne, Paris. Less than a year ago Mrs. Brulattour started a separation suit in the Supreme Court, but the idea of airing their domestic troubles in court did not appeal to either of them, so a separation agreement—a sort of declaration of domestic independence—was drafted under the terms of which Mrs. Brulattour was to receive $20,000 a year alimony.

A hitch in the out-of-court negotiations occurred when Mrs. Brulattour asked for a larger allowance, and finally, she alleges, her husband agreed to take out $65,000 worth of life insurance, making his wife and children beneficiaries. When the time came to take out the policies Mrs. Brulattour found her husband unwilling, he says. The proceeds, a huge sum for some time, until Louis Stockler, attorney for Mrs. Brulattour, was trying a case in which Mrs. Julia Smith was suing Brulattour for $20,000 damages for injuries caused by his automobile.

Mr. Stockler was Mrs. Smith's lawyer. He brought out testimony from Brulattour that astonished the wife. Mrs. Brulattour found her husband unwilling, he says. The proceeds, a huge sum for some time, until Louis Stockler, attorney for Mrs. Brulattour, was trying a case in which Mrs. Julia Smith was suing Brulattour for $20,000 damages for injuries caused by his automobile.

QUIGG URGED COLONEL

TRIED TO GET PLEDGES

Ivins Springs Affidavit and Endeavors to Show Roosevelt Was Ineligible to Become Governor of New York.

CROWD CLAMORS AT DOOR
TO HEAR T. R. GRILLED.By Samuel M. Williams
(Special from a Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)
COURT HOUSE, SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 22.—Col. Roosevelt to-day became the target for a fire of cross-examination in the Barnes libel suit. Very slowly and insidiously William M. Ivins, counsel for Barnes, began shooting his shell and shrapnel, getting the range before opening with his big guns. When the ground had been well cleared the first of the long anticipated bombs was hurled.

It was a revival of the old charge that Col. Roosevelt was ineligible to have been elected Governor in 1898 because he was not a citizen of New York, having made affidavit for tax purposes that same year that he was a resident of Washington. This same subject was discussed in the convention that nominated Mr. Roosevelt and decided in his favor. Elihu Root made a speech to the delegates setting forth the technical difference between residence and domicile.

While the Colonel might be classed a resident of Washington, because he was living there as an office-holder, he still, according to Mr. Root, held domicile in New York and continued to be a citizen of the State.

Anticipating that this would be brought up at the trial the Roosevelt counsel forearmed themselves with letters, opinions and affidavits. Senator Root will not be called as a witness, but he has contributed an opinion maintaining his original views.

At the afternoon session Col. Roosevelt was forced to admit that he called on Boss Platt to talk over his proposed nomination for Governor. He was urged to make the call by Lemuel Quigg.

At the opening of court to-day at the trial of William Barnes's libel suit against Col. Roosevelt Justice Andrews ruled that certain parts of the Barnes libel suit could not be admitted in evidence. The defense wanted all before the jury because it touched upon operations of the Barnes local machine, but had to be content with those portions referring to State affairs and to local printing contracts.

In order to make his meaning clear the Justice specified the scattering paragraphs admitted in evidence and handed his marked copy to Roosevelt's counsel to read to the jury. Both sides were displeased with the ruling and had exceptions noted.

Preliminary conference and reading of the contested Barnes report took up the first hour of the session, so that it was 11 o'clock before Col. Roosevelt took the stand.

This is the birthday of Mr. Ivins. He said he felt sixty-four years young. Likewise it is the forty-fourth anniversary of his admission to the bar. He received many congratulations.

On the bench with Justice Andrews sat his venerable father, Charles Andrews, former Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, now 94 years old, but still hale and active enough to

AUDIENCE OF 700 FLEES
BRONX THEATRE BLAZE

Small Fire Starts While Film of "Three Weeks" Is Being Shown.

Elmer Glyn's "Three Weeks" was being run on a film in the McKinley Square Theatre, No. 113 Boston Road, the Bronx, when fire was discovered at 3:15 o'clock in a washroom on the gallery floor. There was very little flame, but a great deal of smoke.

Manager Samuel Fleck ordered his eight men ushers to open the twenty exits. Then he walked out on the stage and said to the seven hundred spectators, most of them women and children: "Ladies and gentlemen, there is a little fire upstairs, a very little fire. Just keep cool and walk out quietly by the nearest exit. The flames will be out in a few minutes and you can come back."

The 700 spectators moved out calmly while the orchestra played "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary."

The fireman on duty at the theatre sent in an alarm and two engines had the flames out in a very few minutes. Within a quarter of an hour the spectators were back in the seats.
